Input sought on name of City's newest park

July 27, 2012— The City of Deltona has opened a new park on the south side of the City--a 60-acre passive park that will provide connectivity to regional bike trail systems. The park's walking trail system provides visitors the opportunity to experience firsthand the natural ecosystem and how the City's storm water system co-exists and enhances the park's water elements. In the future, the City hopes to widen the mulch trails surrounding the wet lands, add service facilities and picnic areas for bikers and other guests as well as educational displays encouraging visitors to appreciate Deltona's upland ecosystems and wetlands.

In collaboration with the City of Deltona's Facility Naming Guidelines, the Deltona City Commission is seeking a name for this park which is located southwest of Doyle Road and Sheryl Drive. The park is open from sunup to sundown. For more information on this park, contact Deltona Parks & Recreation. To suggest a name for the park, visit deltonafl.gov and complete the nomination form on the Parks & Recreation page of the City's Web site, deltonafl.gov.
